The Diamond Sutra - The perfection of Wisdom

Tr. by

"Tell me Subhuti. Do those who find the river think, 'I have found the river'?"

Subhuti replied, "No indeed, Bhagavan. Those who find the river do not think, 'I have found the river'. And why not? Bhagavan, they do not find any such dharma. Thus are they said to 'find the river'. They do not find a sight, nor a sound, a smell, a taste, a touch, or a dharma. Thus are they said to 'find a river.' Bhagavan, if those who found the river should think 'I have attained the goal of finding the river', they would be attached to a self, they would be attached to a being, a life, a soul."

Flash Relic Treasures Bamboo Ceremony HSZC garden: Piaka, Rev. Myo, Bro Chris & Will, August 5, 2013

● For August: We had a flash ceremony on August 5th. While Jen dug and excavated the bamboo roots small pieces of the past began to present themselves. Little primarily glass, metal or ceramic pieces of once larger objects in their prior incarnation came to light. Many were possibly buried as junk tossed into the back of a former family's house or small intentionally buried reminders of the lives that came to Maitri Hospice and passed beyond our perceivable world. As the roots were extracted and sifted and the dirt put back from what use to be bamboo grove space, now next to now bamboo island; Jen had realized it was important to leave behind some small items from our lives for the next beings to discover and ponder. The ceremony was a nice concise 15 minute ceremony attended by a small group who was around, Manjushri, offerings of candles, flowers and incense as attendees reflected on the lives touched by the items found in the grove and our lives now going back into the earth in the to be quiet contemplative memorial corner.

● Words from our Practice Leader: Reverend Myo Lahey -Valley Stream Dharma Talk
July 22, 2013

"One important way of turning towards each other is when our inspiration is to do just the opposite. To take a special effort to come to someone and meet them...This gesture of openness and trust does something quite profound to the whole world, not just us. And it can be very scary...Even though there is sometimes conflict in our Sangha and things are sometimes painful or difficult, even so we take that scary step, bring our zazen with us, whole body-mind, and turn towards the trouble rather than away. It really does transform the world.

And yeah, it's scary sometimes. Of course it is scary because we think there is someone in here who is threatened by whatever the circumstances are, but of course, Buddha teaches that there is no one in there who is in danger of anything. It's not exactly our experience, so mostly we have to practice with that teaching for a while. What does Buddha mean, there's nobody in there really? Our friend Dogen says, in order to realize that teaching we need to study this person, study the self very intimately and carefully..."

"Zhaozhou says, even if you stay in the monastery for 10-20 years and you are silent for years, and you don't utter word, even so, there is expression. One of the things we like to do is express the Buddha Way by being still. In a way, that kind of expression may be best. It can be a little disheartening for people, so we try to have some Dharma talks where we actually say something so people can hear a few words. Otherwise we kind of leave them to sit in silence and stew until they maybe notice that there is, nonetheless, expression. Zhaozhou says...if our heart does not leave the monastery, then even if you leave the monastery, you are not leaving the monastery. What does he mean by that? He means that we are at home with our expression wherever we are, whatever it is. This is the fundamental teaching of zazen: the "at home" with our expression, who we are, and to come together with others and share those expressions. From that process, the Sangha jewel is born...even though I think Americans are tempted to try and see if they can do without the Sangha jewel since that is beyond a doubt the most troubling of the three jewels, the Sangha jewel, but if you remove any one of them, they all go away. To make this effort to share our expression with one another is pretty important because as you've probably already noticed Sangha is about something more than just our individual life-path; there is something that we create as a Sangha that is beyond the individual."

 Crumpled on the floor
 Worn too many
 Dances and weddings
 And funerals and more
 My body lies there
 As I escape through a hidden door
 No more was or when
 Just me becoming a then
 I'm flying away

● From the Garden: The plants and flowers of HSZC garden wishes to thank the flash relic decor and participants for adding some special *Sarira jewel secrets back into our earth, it helps us feel a little dressed up with some buried treasure.

*(Wikipedia >) Śarīra (शरीर) is a generic term referring to "Buddhist relics", although in common usage it usually refers to pearl or crystal-like bead-shaped objects that are purportedly found among the cremated ashes of Buddhist spiritual masters. Sarira are held to emanate or incite 'blessings' and 'grace' (Sanskrit: adhishtana) within the mindstream and experience of those connected to them. Sarira are also believed to ward off evil in the Himalayan Buddhist tradition.

● Ascending the Mountain: The inner lining of the Okesa envelope has been shopped for and acquired. Walls to be painted and garden work to get us to the point of the big Mountain Seat Hartford Street ZC Ceremony & celebration in October!
